Excel to PDF conversion

The new TAS E-filing System allows users to upload files in different formats, including Excel. While the original file format will be available, the System must also convert Excel files to PDF in order to place a watermark on the document during the docketing process. Making a few changes to your Excel files will improve their convertibility to PDF.

Initial Changes

The following changes are recommended:

- Word Wrapping

Columns which contain cell data with long sentence structures are recommended to be word wrapped and the column width extended to improve readability.

- Borders

Borders can improve readability since the pdf conversion will not autogenerate borders. Printing Gridlines is an alternative option as well, but some formatting may overlap the gridlines.

- Text Size

Aside from headings or cells with specific styling, a consistent text size is recommended throughout the document sheets.

Page Formatting

These next steps will set up the document for PDF conversion. These changes are required for every sheet within the document.

- 1) Navigate to the Page Layout Tab.

- 2) Set Margins to Narrow. This will still allow headers and footers or titles in the conversion. Smaller margins can be utilized but may cut off elements such as headers/footers.

- 3) For Orientation, if the width of the spreadsheet is crossing more than halfway of a 16:9 screen on 100% zoom, then it is recommended to use Landscape for the sheet. Otherwise, Portrait should be fine for most cases.

- 4) (Optional) Set the Print Area if there are cells outside of the sheet that are not required in the conversion. Pre-selecting the cells is required before pressing the set print area button.

- 5) To make sure that all columns are within one page, modify the Scale to Fit settings. Width should be one page, and the Height to Automatic. Scale will grey out and automatically adjust to fit the columns into a single page.

6) The Document is now ready for PDF Conversion!

Additional Considerations

- Set your zoom to at least 60%, and preferably 100%. Depending on the width of the sheet, if readability is required for a converted PDF that is scaled to fit the window, then anything below 60% may be difficult to read on some screens. 100% zoom will always be readable.
 - Certain devices may not show the scale percentage, so testing may be needed. One way to view what the pdf will look like is the using the Print preview of the sheet.
- If a row needs to be repeated, this setting can be changed in Page Setup>Sheet under Rows to repeat at top.
